

Gabriel Rivera
MCA 276
Prof. La Rosa
4 February 2016

Viral Video Proposal

This story is about a young boy who idolized his father and wanted to be just like him. His father was a Fireman. On the morning of the boy's first day of school his father called him and wished him good luck at school and with the ladies. Most importantly, he told his son how much he loves him. It would be the last time he would speak to his father. His mother picked him up from school early that day. When they arrived home, his mother broke the news. He had difficulty understanding the words escaping her mouth, but eventually understood his father had passed away. Years passed by and the young boy became a young man. Embittered by his father's passing, he acted out regularly. He and his mother grew distant. One day they got into a nasty argument. His mother looked at him and said "Your father would be so ashamed of you." He became emotional and went to the attic to seek solace. In the attic he found a trunk and in it was his father's firefighter uniform cap. Inside of the cap was a photo of him and his father inscribed "Son, I love you more than life itself. You make me so proud." He clenched it, cried, and went back downstairs to hug his mother. As he marches proudly across the stage to accept his placard during graduation from the Fire Department academy. At the end of the ceremony his mother tells him, "I'm so proud of you, and so is your father." He takes off his cap and pulls out the photo of him and his father. They both look at it and smile. This private moment of love and happiness is one everyone can relate to.