

Gabriel Rivera

MCA 276

Professor LaRosa

24 February 2016

Audio Story

For my podcast or radio program I would like to propose the Triple Double Podcast. The name stems from the triple double in basketball in which a player must have a double digit number in three of five offensive statistical categories. This include points, rebounds, assists, steals, and blocked shots. The podcast will discuss news related to the National Basketball Association or NBA. It is designed to give fans a platform to converse about the NBA comfortably together and openly express their views. This week's podcast will examine the Golden State Warriors who are the defending NBACHampions. Last season they won 67 games, an impressive feat. The Golden State Warriors remain the best team in the NBA. This past Monday night the team won its 50th game. That victory has set the Warriors as the team in NBA history to win 50 games the fastest and has placed them in a position to surpass their win total from last season. Many fans and experts are in awe of their accomplishments. But, is everyone as appreciative? In a roundtable with other fans we will debate whether the achievements of the Golden State Warriors is genuinely history in the making or just a flash in the pan which will eventually burn out.